

Sanford Chodosh, M.D.,
Retired

Dr. Chodosh recently retired from the VA Outpatient Clinic in Boston, Massachusetts, where he was Chief of Staff for 14 years and Chief of Pulmonary. Dr. Chodosh graduated from the University of Virginia with a bachelor's degree in biology and chemistry and earned his medical degree from the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine in Baltimore, Maryland. He completed his internship, residency, and pulmonary fellowship at Boston City Hospital. He is a Fellow of the American College of Chest Physicians (FAACP), and is Associate Professor of Medicine at Boston University School of Medicine. Dr. Chodosh has been a clinical investigator for 40 years. He has authored or coauthored more than 73 articles, 38 abstracts, and 40 chapters in books and monographs. He has been involved in a number of hospital and organization activities and has received numerous awards and honors. Dr. Chodosh served as the IRB chairperson at the Boston City Hospital from 1971-1984. He continues to be deeply involved with the protection of human and animal subjects in research as President and Founder of the non-profit organization called Public Responsibility in Medicine and Research. He is currently the active leader in the development of an accreditation process for human research protection programs.